Local Labor Goes Online for Council Election

Local Labor candidates for Marrickville Council are taking their message online by today launching a new website (www.marrickvillelocallabor.org) and facebook group.

This is the first time that Local Labor has taken their policies and plans online.

Local Labor Candidates for the Marrickville Council election will unveil their website (www.marrickvillelocallabor.org) today at 1pm at the Debbie & Abbey Borgia Centre, Illawarra Rd Marrickville.

“www.marrickvillelocallabor.org is a place where residents can find out about Local Labor’s candidates, key issues in the Marrickville area and get essential information about the local government elections” said Emanuel Tsardoulis, Local Labor candidate for West ward.

“Local Labor Candidates want to connect with as many residents in the Marrickville Area. We know that quickest and easiest way for people to tell us how they want to see Marrickville Council improve is online.” said Laura Wright, Local Labor candidate for North ward.

“Marrickvillelocallabor.org is a site that is a two way conversation. There is a community survey, a blog and contacts so that you can interact with our candidates and find out what they want to achieve for our local area.” said Mary O’Sullivan, Local Labor candidate for South Ward.

“Doorknocking, street stalls and meeting with residents in parks are still an important part of talking to local residents about our policies and plans for Marrickville. The website takes this further and gives a quick and easy way for people to give us their ideas and feedback.” said Sam Iskandar, Local Labor Candidate for Central Ward.
